THE PRIESTS OF CUBA.

Downfall of Their Temporal Power Coincident to That of certain lines and leat them in peculiar ruis.

One particular in which a change is bound to take place it in the position of the church. The revolation has brought about a social and theological crisis, perhaps a chaos. In Cuba, as in the Philippines, the priests have, from the time of the first settlement, held almost absolute sway, not only in things spiritual, but in social, and, to some extent, in political affairs. Whether Cuba becomes independent or is made a part of the United States, there is certain to be an alternation of church and state. The priests will have to stand alone in conhectors as they can no longer hold absolute control of the lives and fortunes of the people. It is interesting to see how quickly this idea has permentsee how quicky this idea has perment-ed all ranks. Of course the church has still pienty of loyal supporters, but even these no longer maintain the at-titude of complete dependence which characterised them when Span's au-thority was still unquestioned.

To one who is familiar with the pres-ent state of affairs in the island, it is ed the names of those who met to consider means of throwing off the yoke of Spain. It was in such a manner that the author of these pamphlets which first instinated the revolt in the province of Camaguey, Seraplo Recio, was discovered by the Spanish authorities and compelled to fee for als life. He, with four associates, had carried the little hand press with which the work was done in the dead of night from the house of one to the other, thus for many menths cluding the vigilance of Spain's secret service. But the confessional of the clergy wormed the secret from the thoughtless wife of Recio, and within an hour's time it was in the possession of the governor general at Havana. It is claimed and accepted as a fact on the Island that more than half of the arrests, deportations and executions were made at the instigation of secret service agents, who were the electric for claim.

As an evidence of the manhete hard borne towards the insurgents by the Cartholic chergy, an incident which was witnessed by the correspondent near Las Minas, in the province of Camaguey, in the summer, may be cited; Four young men had been arrested that merning as "insurrectos," and that merning as "insurrectos," and were being marched under guard toward Neuvitas, when a priest, the chaplain of the Aldecoa regiment, rode up on his mule. Espoying the prisoners with hands manacled, he borrowed a lieutenant's machete, rode after them, and with the itat side of the blade belongs the backs of these helpiess. Beys until he tired of the sport, and then rode back, delivering the markete.

The frantic appeals of the priesthood to secure some concession which will protect their rights and property when the final disposition of Cuba is settled can be understood by their reluctance to give up a good thing. Not only did Cuba pay a large part of the necessary expenses of the mother country, but she did a great deal more than her share in keeping up the state than her share in keeping up the state church. It is, of course, impossible to estimate the amount of these contribu-tions, voluntary and otherwise, which, up to the beginning of the late revoluup to the beginning of the late revolu-tion, poured into the lap of the church. A conservative estimate of the moneys which crossed the Atlantic from Cuba to the mother country placed the sum at above $35,000,000 g year. This drain upon the people, much of which came from the pockets of the poor, has been going on for centuries, but it will not keep on much longer. The complete relutious subjection of the Cubans in their previous state is matched only by the complete indifference which they display at the present time.

Almost us seen as it took the field the "army of diberation" threw off all allegiance to its former rulers. The reflex action of the church is usually attained. flex section of the church is usually either agnosticism or infidelity. In the case lof the Cubans it has been infidelity. Caba totay will prove a discouraging pill to any missionaries of any sect. A calm indifference to the mandate of the priest and the fate of his soul is the theological attitude of the average Cuban soldier. His whole interest is centered in an independent government and in the immediate planting of a sweet potato patch. The observance of the Sabbath during the past three years has been unknown in the insurgent army. Bibles are scarcer

Havana, Sept. 12 (via Miami, Fla.)—
The reconstruction of the island of Cuba and the formation of a stable government will be the signal for the immigration of investors and zettlers to an extent which can hardly be estimated. Within a year English-speaking peoples will be flocking into the island by hundreds, if not by thousands. The Inteligentual and meral status of the new comers will be so at variance with the native Cubans that a certain shock will be unavoidable. It will be the contact of the skateenth and nineteenth centuries. The native Cuban, the gualito, countryman, will not understand the American and his ways, because he has not seen his like before. The American will not understand the Cubans had conducted the major countries, after peace has been restored and understood only by intimate association with the people, by knowing their inner life, their traditions and the torces which have it religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored and understood only by intimate association with the people, by knowing their inner life, their traditions and the forces which have it religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored and understood only by intimate association with the people, by knowing their inner life, their traditions and the forces which have it religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored and understood only by intimate association with the people, by knowing their inner life, their traditions and the force which have it religious orders in those for the religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored and understood only by intimate association with the people, by knowing their inner life, their praditions and the force which have it religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored the peace of the religious orders in those countries, after peace has been restored the will be allowed the peace of the religious orders in those largest the peace of the religious orders in those peace in the peace of

The Tribuna of Rome says: "The vatican is in constant communication with Archbishop Ireland and Mgr. Martinelli, apostolic delegate in the United States, and the Duke Almodovar de Rio, the Spanish minister of foreign affairs, endeavoring to secure clauses in the treaty of peace that will safeguard the religious interests of Catholic residents in countries to be ceded by Spain to the United States." In the United States Roman Catholicism, in its struggle for existence, has had to contend with other creeds, and having never had the ussistance of the government, it has learned to live and stand alone. Its progress has been the result of legitimate endeavor and competition. But, as is well known to all who have lived in Spain's colonies, the reverse is the case there. The clerry reverse is the case there. The clern; with but little effort fattened on the ent state of affairs in the island, it is needless to say that no love is lost between the priesis and the members of the Cuban party. In every attempt that has been made to throw off the yoke of Spain, the church has been consistently on the side of the mother country.

The first news of the recent revolution received by the military authorities came from the clergy, learned by them through the confessional. From this source the Spainsh commanders learned the hames of these who met to consider means of throwing off the yoke of Spain, it was in such a manner that
